America's Yacht Rainbow, Defeats British Decisively

"Mike" Vanderbilt Sails Rings Around Sopot's Endeavor

U. S. LEADS 3 TO 2 With Three Straight Victories, One More Will Clinch Cup

NEWPORT, R. I.—Fleeing before the wind like a huge white gull, beating steadily back as though she never had known a conqueror, Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt's Rainbow for the third straight time Monday trounced the British challenger Endeavor, skippered by T. O. M. Sopot.

Monday night the doughty Englishman, after winning two straight at the start, was further than ever from lifting the historic America's cup. Britain's unrequited dream from the day in 1851 when the yacht America sailed so fast around the Isle of Wight in winning it that Queen Victoria was sadly told: "There was no second, your majesty."

By nightfall Tuesday, needing only one more victory in the best four out of seven series, Rainbow, on the basis of present form, may have wound up one of the most turbulent streaks the competition ever has known.

The amazing American defender, despite the loss of a parachute spinnaker torn to pieces in a breeze that at times reached 20 knots, continued to upset expert calculations by turning in the highest winning margin thus far, four minutes and one second, in weather supposedly made to order for the invader.

It was the second official victory for the American in 24 hours, for Sunday night the race committee threw out a protest Stop with had lodged after Rainbow led his blue-hulled sloop home by one minute and 51 seconds Saturday.

There was no chance for protests Monday. Endeavor, in difficulties shortly after the start when her main-mast spinnaker, nicknamed Annie Oakley because it's punched full of holes like a free fight ticket, wrapped around the headstays and couldn't be untangled for fully five minutes.

When it was finally worked away, and filled with the sprightly 14-knot wind that flicked up white caps and drenched all hands, Rainbow was 200 yards ahead.

That it turned out to be the closest Endeavor was going to get at any time thereafter on the 15-mile run to the leeward mark and the best back to the starting buoy.

Sail Is Torn
Rainbow, with her parachute spinnaker expert, Herman Hoyt of New York, at the wheel in Vanderbilt's place, was a full half mile ahead, three quarters of an hour after the start, when the rip suddenly appeared in the side of the huge canvas balloon billowing out ahead of her. In a moment the air about was full of whipping canvas out of control and her crew worked desperately.

In five minutes, as Vanderbilt kept the course with only his mainsail, the crew managed to get the wreckage of $2,500 worth of sail on board. Within 100 minutes a new spinnaker, identified as the parachute borrowed Sunday from Yankee, the Boston boat defeated by Rainbow for the right to defend the cup, was broken out, and the race was as good as over.

Rainbow's elapsed time was 3:54.05 and Endeavor's 3:58.06, considerably over the cup record Vigilant set at 3:24.39 back in 1925.

Banquet for Bobcats Thursday Night

City to Hold Pep Rally on Eve of the Camden Game

Coach Hammons and Squad to Be Guests of Young Business Men

ALL CITY INVITED

Business Men Urged to Support Rally Before Important Contest

Hope's Bobcats will be given a banquet and pep-meeting rally of local fans at 8 o'clock Thursday night as a sendoff for the game against the Camden Panthers on the local field Friday night.

Camden, a state title contender for the last several years, will be the first real test for Coach Foy Hammons' rejuvenated Bobcats, who snowed under the Hamburg eleven last week in the season's opener 71 to 0.

The banquet Thursday night will be tendered Coach Hammons and his entire squad by the Young Business Men's association, 8 o'clock at the New Capital hotel.

Hope's football fans are urged to subscribe to the banquet and attend. It will be free, of course, to the coach and the players.

On the face of last Friday's magnificent team play Hope is given a good chance to "take" Camden, despite the latter's advantage in weight and previous season's records.

Good Line Play
The 71-0 score indication of the real difference between the locals and the Ashley county eleven, for the first time was yanked at the half, and the score could just as well have been 150 to 0.

Coach Hammons' theory that a football team begins with its line play was emphasized by the results against Hamburg, when the Bobcat field-runners got away "clean" in almost every instance, never having more than one man to dodge, and sometimes being in the clear by many feet.

Local fans believe this kind of teamwork will turn in a surprise victory over Camden.

Should Hope defeat Camden the Bobcats will have the first state contender in the last ten years of Arkansas high school football history.

Hamburg Figures
Figures on the performance of the individual players in last Friday's game against Hamburg follow:

Player	Number of times carried the ball	No. of Yards Gained from scrimmage	Average Yds. Gained
1. Speedy Hamilton	8	86	10.75
2. Brown	14	220	15.71
3. Payne	6	84	14.00
4. R. Turner	6	38	6.33
5. Spears	3	15	5.00
6. Harper	2	10	5.00
7. Stroud	3	10	3.33
8. J. Turner	4	11	2.75
9. Fenwick	2	5	2.50

Tackles: Hamilton 7; Anderson 6; Harper 6; W. Stone 6; Severe 6; F. Barr 6; K. B. Spears 6; Hilly 5; Beece 5; Spears 4.

Dictatorship Over Banks Abandoned

Commissioner Wasson Announces End of Emergency Control

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Although relinquishing his authority under the so-called bank dictatorship act of 1933, State Bank Commissioner Marion Wasson declared Tuesday he would not let up on the regulations he promulgated a year ago requiring banks to keep the minimum amount of cash on hand to prevent robberies.

Emergency Has Passed
LITTLE ROCK—The period of bank dictatorship in Arkansas has ended, and while Act 38 of 1933, which granted drastic powers to the state bank commissioner, will remain in effect until next March, no effort will be made during the ensuing five months, Commissioner Marion Wasson said Monday.

Arkansas banks which have been under management of the department since March 1933, will be returned to the supervision of Chancery Courts, as soon as an inventory can be made, Mr. Wasson said.

Mr. Wasson said he will not ask the next legislature to extend the "dictator" law.

Mrs. Featherston Dies of Injuries

Bradley Woman Succumbs Following Lewisville Auto Collision

Mrs. Featherston, sustained inter-ley, died at 9:45 o'clock Monday night in Josephine hospital following a collision Monday noon below Lewisville between the taxicab in which she was being returned home and a Shreveport truck.

She was taken to Bradley early Tuesday for funeral services from her home.

Mrs. Featherston sustained internal injuries, a broken left hip, and other hurts.

Her husband, also at Josephine hospital, received several broken ribs in the accident.

The taxidriver, Jimmy Field of Hope, broke his right arm, the same which was broken in a collision with a cow on the Fulton paved road during the summer. Field's arm was placed in plaster cast at Julia Chester hospital.

The truck-driver, John Lund, of the Air Reduction Sales company, Shreveport, was taken to a hospital in that city following the accident, and the extent of his injuries was not learned in Hope.

Both cars were demolished by the impact, which was attributed to the Shreveport driver going around another car and colliding with the Hope taxi on the latter's side of the road.

Mrs. Crow Given 'Life' for Murder

Is Quickly Convicted of Part in Slaying of Buck Pearson

TEXARKANA.—Mrs. Lida Crow, 22, was found guilty and assessed a sentence of life imprisonment by a Miller county circuit court jury late Monday afternoon that deliberated her guilt in the slaying of T. E. (Buck) Pearson, rural mail carrier, only 20 minutes before returning a verdict.

Mrs. Crow received the verdict calmly, and in a jokingly hospitable mood invited her friends and relatives to "come to see me on visiting days—the second and fourth Sunday of every month."

Paul Favors, who was near the scene of the killing, already has received a life sentence; and Elmo Smith, who has entered a plea of guilty as the actual slayer, will learn his fate Tuesday, it was disclosed when a jury of 12 will hear all the circumstances.

Little Rock Hotels Quit NRA Emblem

Grady Manning Declares Operation Under Eagle "Impossible"

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Terming it impossible to operate under the hotel and restaurant code and stay in business, H. Grady Manning, president of Southwest Hotels, Inc., told the NRA advisory board Monday that he did not intend to fly the blue eagle over his hotels here and at Hot Springs.

Manning said despite the payment of less wages and waitresses than called for by the code, "there's not a girl working at the Marion who is not making more than $75 a month, when she counts her tips."

The advisory board, with Former Associate Justice Chroll D. Wood presiding as chairman, opened public hearings to determine the recommendations it will make to the state NEC in regard to code compliance.

Manning, who is chairman of the inoperative state hotel code authority, was charged by Brooks Hays, NRA compliance officer for the state, with having influenced other hotel men to abandon the code.

Manning denied this, but said that when the national hotel code authority ceased operating in June, he abandoned the blue eagle. He contended he was not violating the code when he took down the eagle, but Edward McLaughlin, executive assistant to the NEC chairman, James J. Harrison, took issue with this statement.

Hays and McLaughlin charged Manning with having prevented NRA investigators interviewing hotel employees, but Manning said his men was that he did not want the employees disturbed when the "correct information" was obtainable from him.

N. Y. Commissioner Hits Mayor, Quits

O'Ryan Assails LaGuardia for "Political Interference" With Police

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Gen. John F. O'Ryan issued a bitter denunciation of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia Monday night and then turned in his shield as police commissioner a day ahead of schedule. The city was left without a police chief until Tuesday morning when Chief Inspector Lewis J. Valentine, who has been designated to succeed the commissioner, was to be sworn in.

While his views and those of the city's chief executive have been at variance for some time, O'Ryan said that the "incident which determined my resignation occurred on the evening of primary day." He charged the mayor had impaired the morals of the police department by concentrating 400 patrolmen and detectives in LaGuardia's "political battalions" on that night.

He also implied the mayor had sought to interfere with the running of the police department. The mayor's attitude, he concluded, was tending to "demoralize the morale of the department in suppressing public disorders."

Bribe Charged by Parks in Contest

Accuses Kitchens in Ashley—Hits Illegal Hempstead Vote

EL DORADO, Ark.—(AP)—Attempted bribery in the seventh district congressional race was charged Monday by Tilman B. Parks in his answer and cross complaint to the contest suit filed by Wade Kitchens of Magnolia, defeated candidate in the race.

Parks also charged that more than 750 illegal votes were cast for Kitchens at the 22 boxes in Hempstead and Nevada counties and that 500 illegal ballots were cast for him in his home county of Columbia.

Parks' cross complaint filed in Ashley circuit court at Hamburg, charged that control of the Ashley county patronage was promised members of the committee and the Crossett postmaster's promise Gene Aiken, its secretary, if the vote was switched to assure Kitchens' election. It further alleged that on other occasions the committeemen were told there was "some money in it" if the Ashley vote was switched.

An attempt to "buy" the Crossett box on election day with an offer to "pay twice as much" therefor as any other person" also was charged.

Congressman Parks seeks to have the entire Columbia vote voided, claiming that only one box with its ballots, tally sheets and poll books had been in proper custody of the county clerk after Circuit Judge Patrick Henry of Monticello issued an order September 19, which placed all seventh congressional district boxes in the custody of their respective county clerks. The order also permitted inspection of all boxes, and last week evidence of tampering was reported found at every one in Ashley county.

Ballots and election materials at all except "three or four" Calhoun county boxes have been lost, destroyed or misplaced by the rival faction, Parks contended in his cross complaint. He asks that the official Calhoun vote be accepted as reported.

Both Ashley and Calhoun were carried by Parks on the basis of the official returns. In the event the official votes are not recognized, he asks that he be allowed to bring voters to court and prove that they supported him.

The congressman requested a "perjury" in Hempstead, Nevada and in Columbia as a whole. He charged that the boxes were left "exposed" in the clerk's office at Magnolia, "to anyone desiring to tamper with them." He also claims the clerk refused to allow his representative to see the poll books, tally sheets and returns.

Parks, who formerly resided in Hope, carried Hempstead county by a small majority. Columbia and Nevada counties were stronghold of Kitchens.

In conclusion, the congressman claimed he had been re-nominated by a vote of 14,065 to 13,194. Official returns gave Parks 11,065 and Kitchens 13,774.

Justice Agents Find His Shoes Match Prints on Lindbergh Estate

NEW YORK.—(AP)—District Attorney Samuel Foley announced on Tuesday after a 3½ hour grand jury session that the case put up by Bruno Richard Hauptmann, receiver of the Lindbergh ransom money, had been "completely broken."

Foley said it was disclosed before the grand jury that two closet panels had been found in the Hauptmann home which bore the address and telephone number of Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, who paid the ransom to the supposed representative of the kidnapers.

The prosecutor said Hauptmann admitted writing the numbers on the panels but insisted it was only because he was interested in the case. Meanwhile, the Department of Justice disclosed it had found a similarity between footprints found on the Lindbergh estate the night of the kidnapping and those of Hauptmann.

Before Grand Jury
NEW YORK.—(AP)—The ransom money found in the garage of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, alleged receiver of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom, the ransom notes and other messages from the kidnaper, were taken before the Bronx county grand jury Tuesday.

The evidence was presented in an effort to obtain an indictment charging extortion against Hauptmann.

State Bloodhounds Seeking Fugitive

Springman, Arkansas Escaped, Resembles Pretty Boy Floyd

LEIPZIG, Germany.—(AP)—Isadore Fisch, the man from whom Bruno Richard Hauptmann says he received the Lindbergh ransom money, who died here this spring, turned over to Leipzig relatives considerable amounts of money, it was revealed Monday.

Paul Fisch, Isadore's brother, admitted that in the course of a year he had received approximately $1,500, but he also said he had maintained constant business connections with his brother in America. It was not made known whether these payments by Isadore were the results of these business contracts or whether they were made as gifts.

Since Hauptmann's arrest directed attention to Isadore Fisch and his family here, neighbors have remarked that in spite of the business depression, particularly acute in the fur business, Paul has been able to considerably enlarge his business during the last few years. Paul, however, says, "I welcome any investigation."

Another member of the family said to have received money is Isadore's sister, Anna Fisch, although no specified amounts are given. Anna, however, revealed that her deceased brother left a bunch of keys among which is believed to be a key to a safe deposit box in America.

Anna, herself, said she did not know whether such a key was among those turned over by her brother, Anna, who maintains an apartment of her own, is a stenographer, at present out of work. Isadore's father said he had received no money from his son.

The Leipzig police called on Ralph C. Busser, American consul here, today and offered to co-operate, but neither the police nor Mr. Busser had received any request or instructions thus far. Police authorities said that exhumation of Isadore's body was possible only by a court decision.

City Managership Move Is Blocked

Little Rock Meeting Side-tracks Criticism of City Council

LITTLE ROCK.—A proposed resolution that would have criticized the city council for urging, and the Democratic City Committee for setting, an early date for the city primary, and which would have caused appointment of a committee to continue the fight for a city manager system of government, was tabled 15 to 6 at a meeting of about 55 persons at the East Side Junior High School auditorium Monday.

The meeting was called by W. S. Mitchell in an effort to aid the movement for a city manager government here. Following the vote on the resolution which he had proposed, Mr. Mitchell said "the effort is not labored whenever the city council opposes it."

Former Governor George W. Donaghey discussed the history of the initiative and referendum amendment, and said that the aldermanic form of government has failed the city in "sins of omission." Taking the city water supply as an example, Mr. Donaghey criticized the quality of the water and said that the aldermen have done nothing about it in 25 years. He suggested that the citizens use the initiative and referendum amendment to "get a good water supply and a city manager form of government at the same time."

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Children Are Slow to Learn Generosity

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Are children born with a sense of right and wrong? There is little to prove that they are.

Naturally, when they get over the babyhood stage certain mental policemen do develop inhibitions we call them that would be there, it is thought, even if no one said a word to them about doing "wrong."

The savage children without anyone to give them an inkling of theft, murder, or harm to another, would in time develop a recognition of the rights of each other.

However, these natural inhibitions are not present in any exacting degree in the case of the baby.

Indeed, some authorities go so far as to say that babies are born with criminal instincts.

Babies Aren't Criminals

This I think, is hokey. They aren't. I declare this flatly. What they are born with is the "self" instinct. Every thing they do is to develop self. They have a lot of learning and growing to do, and nature greedily seizes on every way and every means to get that "self" going, both mentally and physically.

The selfishness of early childhood is not real selfishness as we know it, but an order from Mother Nature to appropriate every right and privilege that helps the self instinct to expand.

Once this is done and the little fellow or little girl is established as real people in a tough world, nature then begins to let up a little. Very, very slowly come reason and with it the preventive instincts that shape the conduct of the child to less primitive urges and to advance generosity and natural kindness.

Generosity Slow to Bud

Yes, there is a natural generosity in a child of three or four. It may bud even younger.

But parents get impatient. Nature, of course, won't do it all. Nature did not form "social law." So we have to continue where nature left off.

All training toward good should be gradual and tactful. A gardener can kill a young plant and even stop the budding by rough handling and by stifling children are like plants.

It is wrong to call the tiny child "bad." He might be "cross" when routine is irregular or he gets tired or too nervous or hungry, or when the "self" instinct is too greatly interfered with, but he isn't born "wicked."

Whatever children are they are normal human beings. We coined the word "wicked" for our own convenience.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

School Girl Must Guard Her Beauty

Cleanliness and preservation of the natural beauty she now has are the two things for a high school girl to keep in mind when she plans her fall beauty routines. Unless she has some specific skin ailment, one so young needs no corrective treatments. Her list of necessary preparations is simple, but very important.

If you are a gay young Junior remember that a great deal of the beauty you hope you will have when you are thirty depends on the care you give your skin and hair before you are twenty. If you keep the skin scrupulously clean right now you're not likely to have blackheads and coarse pores later on. Get a good complexion soap and use it twice a day.

To counteract any drying effects of the soap and water cleansings, use a reliable cream at least once every day. The double-purpose creams are particularly good for a youthful skin. Get one that is suitable for cleansing and which also can be used as a nourishing cream. When you have washed your face before going to bed smooth on a thin layer, leave it for a few minutes and then wipe off the excess. If your skin tends to be oily, remove every trace of the cream and then rinse with cold water.

Of course you'll want a foundation lotion. It protects your skin from rain and sun and makes powder stay on from 9 o'clock until the next morning. Speaking of powder, be sure to use some, but use it sparingly. Whether or not you go in for lipstick and rouge depends on your own individual taste and that of your mother. If you get enough sleep and take plenty of exercise it's quite possible that your cheeks and lips will have enough natural color of their own.

CHAPTER XXI

THE room had been whitening around Boots. Now it righted itself again and she was herself—pale, tired, a little shabby, in her old blue hat, her fingers locked around an armful of bundles. She was in the doorway of the living room with its Chinese ginger jars and its faded rug and Denis Fenway was staring at her.

"I'm at Lois's for Christmas," he said easily. "They went over to hear the carols and I took a walk and thought I'd drop in for a minute."

"Stay and have a bite of supper with Barbara," her mother urged cordially. "It's just baked beans and cole slaw and tea."

He was taking the bundles from her now. His lean hands took the coat from her shoulders. He was following her into the dining room, where the cloth blazed white under the domed and lozenge center fixture. Boots was in a daze. She moved and spoke and laughed to it. To have him here, in this warmth and shabbiness and homeliness was the sheerest ecstasy. She might as well enjoy it while she could. Later, after he had gone, the knife might twist in her heart. But for the present the food she ate was ambrosia. The jokes they all made were triumphs of race wit. She was neither conscious of weariness nor the passage of time.

Every time Denis glanced in her direction, every time his low laugh rang out she was conscious of a wave of pure happiness washing over her like a tide. This was being alive—to be aware of every syllable, every lightest glance and inflection.

"More salad?" Her mother's look enfolded her. The girl leaned back with a low sigh.

"Oh, I couldn't. I've had so much. It was all so good and I was starved."

Denis glanced at her sideways, considering. Under her pallor she fairly glowed.

"Work agrees with you," she flushed, glancing away. "Think so? Thanks. By the way I don't believe I ever thanked you for giving me that chance with Mr. Masterson."

He waved a careless hand. "I knew you'd suit him, once he saw you."

HAPPINESS, happiness, washing over her, flooding her very being. "I knew you'd suit him. . . . It was a chary enough compliment, to be sure, but the words glittered in her mind; she treasured them."

"Why don't you put me out?" Denis drawled a few moments later when, established in deep chairs before the fire Miss Florida had aid with painstaking hands, they faced each other. "Barging in here on Christmas Eve—it's inexcusable. And you have things to do, haven't you?"

If she had, she had forgotten them all. Make him stay a little while, God, she prayed in her heart. I've had so little of him, ever, and when he's sweet like this, gentle and quiet and happy, with that grim look gone out of his eyes, let him stay. . . .

Edward's big hamper stood imposing and unpacked in the hall. Her mother and Miss Florida murmured softly over the dishes in the kitchen. Upstairs her father dozed over his pipe. And the village was gay with lights on outdoor trees, with lamps lighted in all the little houses. In this dimly lighted room the girl and the man sat on. He roused himself to say, in a silence: "I was a beast that last night I saw you. Thought of it often. Hope you forgive me."

Her breath came and went quickly but she kept her voice steady.

"That was all right. Just one of those things. . . ."

"I'd been at Kay's," he was remembering, aloud. "Rotten party. She hadn't been nice to me for days. Kay's a darling, really," he interpolated, "but when she gets into a vixenish mood you can't do a thing with her. She'd said something about you and Edward getting on like a house afire. I don't know why it made me mad, but it did. I was in a bad mood. Then I'd had some villainous cocktails, too. It just seemed a good idea at the time to drop in and offer you advice. I don't know why I behaved as I did. But I'm sorry. Say you forgive me."

With an effort, she throttled her anger. So he'd come to her, held her in his arms for an instant because Kay had been "vixenish," had he? Oh, why, why must he spoil his apology with Kay's name?

"That was all right," she told him equably. And then, striving to keep her voice commonplace, she went on. "How is Kay?"

His smile flashed at her. "Splendid. She's gone home—to England, you know—for Christmas. Coming back in several weeks. I miss her."

DRUMS, drums throbbing low in her head and a dull, sick pain in her heart. Of course she wouldn't be seeing him now if Kay weren't away. Kay, with her elegance and her arrogantly lifted brows and her scented, finished beauty.

He got to his feet. "Lois will wonder what happened to me. It was good of you to let me come in and stay a while. Say good night to your mother for me, won't you?"

Her smile was perfection. Her manner had just the right shade of casualness. But after the door had closed behind him she stood, actually trembling with emotion, with anger. He had upset her hard-won composure by coming here to night, lightly, carelessly, he strode in and out of her life. Just as the supposed everything was settled and she was definitely committed to her future with Edward, he appeared, causing her pulses to thud and her mind to whirl.

Mrs. Raeburn came out into the hall. "Mr. Fenway gone, dear?"

She managed a smile. "I just shut the door after him. You must be dead."

"I am a bit tired. You don't want to unpack that hamper tonight, child? Never mind—the morning will do as well. We'd better set it in the pantry. It's marked perishable. I'll lock Kitty down cellar so she can't get at it."

She mounted the stairs together. Miss Florida was splashing happily in the bathroom. They could hear her thin voice above the roar of the faucet, singing "Pho Palms."

"Daddy's asleep," the mother said contentedly after a glance into the big front bedroom. "He sleeps well—that's a good mercy, I must say. He had a good day."

I'm a fool and an ingrate to bother about Denis Fenway. Boots told her self passionately, when mother is content with so little. Just a roof over her head and enough food to eat and the assurance that all of us are alive and moderately well. . . .

THERE was a square, squat box on her dressing table, addressed to Edward's angular hand. Boots regarded it dreadingly. Dear Edward! He would always do the correct thing; send her lovely presents for her anniversaries; remember her preference in food and scent. She would never have any heartaches with Edward, probably. He was the faithful type. He had said so, himself. This other—this darling, nervous-fingered young man with the deep voice—was the sort after whom women always ran. You never knew where you were with the Denis Fenways of this world, thought Boots savagely. She stepped out of her wrinkled woolen frock and stood, slim, deliciously frank and staid, in her tailored slip. She frowned at herself in the oval mirror. She wasn't repulsive looking, she reflected, yet Denis seemed never really to see her. Even when he had kissed her he had been thinking of Kay, punishing Kay.

At the thought, her heart-shaped face, framed in its pale gold hair, flashed rosily. The flush ran down over her creamy skin, to the little hollow dipping between her breasts. She shut a hand over her eyes.

"Aren't you going to open your box?" Her mother's voice recalled her to the present.

Boots snatched her woolly robe and flung it over her shoulders. Yes, she would open Edward's gift—for her mother's delectation, at least.

The box lid, laid back, revealed a creamy string of small pearls, perfectly matched. Mrs. Raeburn's faded eyes lighted at sight of them.

"Barbara, they're beautiful! You lucky, lucky girl!"

Miss Florida had to come in then, her thin, homely face glowing from its recent scrubbing. She had to be shown the treasure and echoed the sentiment.

"You're a very fortunate child, I declare. I never saw anything more handsome."

Alone in her room later, Boots stared at the rosily tinted globules slipping through her fingers. She would have rarer things, finer things than these from Edward's generous hands. The pearls were a symbol of her life to come.

She knelt down by the bed. "Please, God, make me worthy of him. He deserves something better than this. But make me love him as much as he loves me."

It was her second prayer that night. First for Denis, now for Edward. But she would put Denis out of her heart forever. That was the only way.

4½ Million Loaned by Credit Ass'ns.

A. N. Johnson Reports on Meeting of 90 Groups at St. Louis

A. N. Johnson, president of the Nashville Production Credit Corporation of Nashville, Arkansas, returned September 20 from St. Louis, where he attended a one-day conference of presidents of the 90 production credit associations of Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas, the three states comprising the St. Louis Farm Credit District. "Since their organization, the 90 associations I note St. Louis District have loaned $1,588,760 to 11,329 farmers," Mr. Johnson said.

He had kissed her he had been thinking of Kay, punishing Kay.

At the thought, her heart-shaped face, framed in its pale gold hair, flashed rosily. The flush ran down over her creamy skin, to the little hollow dipping between her breasts. She shut a hand over her eyes.

"The associations are not lending government money but obtain their funds by discounting the borrowers' notes with the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of the district," he continued. "The Intermediate Credit Bank obtains its funds by selling its debentures to the investing public."

It is for this reason, Mr. Johnson explained, that loans must be made on a sound business basis if the low cost credit of the financial centers is to continue to be available to farmers.

While it is necessary for the farmer to put up sufficient collateral, the associations make their security requirements as reasonable as sound policy permits. Loans are made with the expectation that they will be repaid, and the collateral is only a safeguard against unforeseen circumstances and against the possibility of other creditors taking the property and thus depriving the borrower of his means of earning an income, Mr. Johnson pointed out.

The Nashville Production Credit association serves Pike, Hempstead, Howard, Sevier and part of Polk counties. The central office is located in Nashville, where applications are handled by Jay V. Toland, secretary-treasurer.

Loans are made by the association to finance the production of crops, livestock and livestock products and for general agricultural purposes.

The loans bear 5 per cent interest per year and are made for periods of from 3 to 12 months.

Farmers in many parts of the district reports Mr. Johnson, are saving money by using this source of credit to pay cash for the things they buy, rather than to obtain credit from merchants and dealers who are engaged primarily in selling goods rather than extending credit.

Landlords Must Show Certificates

Must Place Cotton Paper With Ginners or Tenant

According to Frank R. Stanley, Hempstead county agent, the landlords will unwittingly delay the ginning of cotton unless they leave their exemption certificates with the ginner or tenant. Quoting from regulations pertaining to Cotton Act of 1934 Sec. 46 and 47, Mr. Stanley gave the following:

Sec. 16. Landlord must contribute share of certificates to marketing of his cotton. A landlord to whom certificates have been issued with respect to any producer unit shall contribute so much of such certificate (up to the total amount thereof) as are required to gin and tag his share of the crop grown on such unit in order that it may be marketed tax-free.

Sec. 17.—Penalty for landlord who violates Section 46. Upon notice to the Secretary that a landlord has failed to comply with Section 46, the Secretary, pending investigation, may conditionally cancel any or all certificates issued to such landlord and not transferred or assigned by him pursuant to regulations or not exchanged by him for bale tags, and, upon a finding by the Secretary that the landlord has violated Section 46, the Secretary may permanently cancel such certificates and (1) re-issue to the share tenant or share cropper operation the producer unit with respect to which such certificates were issued such amount of said certificates (up to the full amount thereof) as may be necessary to gin and tag the landlord's share of the crop grown on such producer unit in order that it may be marketed tax-free, and (2) re-issue to such landlord any residue of such certificates which remain after the landlord's share of such crop has been so ginned and tagged.

According to the county agent, all producers in Hempstead county who have been issued interim tax exemption certificates and have not given them to the ginner will have to return these certificates to the county agent's office before exemption certificates can be issued.

Please bring these interim certificates to the meeting place in the county so representatives from the county agent's office can release exemption certificates, Mr. Stanley asks.

"My dear, I regret to tell you that I am bankrupt."

"O help! Then I married you for love after all."

Husband—"You have been very extravagant, dear. You are spending too much."

Dear—"I'm not spending too much; it's you that's not earning enough."

Bloodstains Clue in Child's Death

Nashville (Tenn.) Child May Have Been Accidentally Slain

NASHVILLE, Tenn. —(AP)—A laboratory test of bloodstains found on a roadway last Thursday furthered police opinion Monday that the missing six-year-old Dorothy Distelhurst was the victim of a fender's attack.

When the stains were found near the point where Dorothy last was seen at 1:15 p.m. Wednesday on route home from school, a test was necessary to determine how long the stains had been there. Monday, Dr. William Litter, director of the state public health laboratories said it was entirely possible they were made last Wednesday, and he asserted that, "at any rate, they are not more than a week old."

The bloodstains formed the focal point of an investigation which still has "no definite clues" in the mystery. A search and a re-search of a five-mile territory proved fruitless.

Theories which have been advanced include one that the child was killed accidentally by an automobile and that her body was hidden; that she was killed by a train at a nearby railroad crossing and the body carried away on the undercarriage; that she was kidnapped and held for ransom.

To this latter theory, the parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Distelhurst, clung Monday with fading hope, as they received no reply to a public appeal that the kidnappers contact them with police immunity. There has been no reply to another public appeal made by the father, who asked his 17-year-old son, Alfred Jr., to communicate with him. The boy, who left home last November, has not been heard from since May, when he was in Tampa, Fla.

St. Louis Within 2 Games of Lead

Beat Chicago Cubs and Lon Warneke—Giants Are Idle

CHICAGO —(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals continued their furious stretch drive in pursuit of the League leading Giants Monday, beating down the Chicago Cubs 3 to 1, to reduce the world champions' margin to two games.

While the Giants marked time through an open date, Bill Walker, one-time member of the New York pitching staff, collaborated with Pepper Martin and Leo Durocher in winning the Cardinals' eighth victory in their last nine games. The victory was Walker's 11th of the season and his third straight triumph over the Cubs. He allowed seven hits, walked only one, including Babe Herman, the Cubs' left-handed cleanup hitter, three times.

Martin and Durocher played their part by driving in the runs off Lon Warneke, seeking his 22nd victory of the season, and Bill Lee, Durocher opened the third inning with a blow over second base and stretched the hit into a double when Kid Cuyler was slow in returning the ball to the infield. The peppery little St. Louis shortstop moved to third on Walker's sacrifice but it was not necessary, as Martin hit a home run into the left corner seats.

Warneke then resumed his careless pitching until excused for a pinch hitter in the eighth. The Card hit Lee for their second run in the ninth. Bill Delancey singled with one out, took second on a sacrifice and scored as Durocher got his second hit of the game, a single to center.

Kiki Cuyler saved the Cubs from a shut-out when he hit a home run in the ninth. Immediately after the game, which was a playoff on the September 24 postponement, the Cards left for home to open a two-game series with the Pirates.

Schell Circus to Show Here Oct. 3

Monkeys One of Features of Big Circus Coming to This City

Monkeys are always interesting to both old and young. One day a circus manager purchased a new rare animal, and the first day he was placed on exhibition he took a good location in the manager's tent in order to witness the surprise of the people when they observed the new animal. To his chagrin, everyone made a bee line for the monkey cage and made the greater part of their visit watching these funny animals.

When the Schell Bros. Circus closes its season and goes to winter quarters the monkeys are given a large cage in the animal barn. A keeper one day, in cleaning the cage out, forgot to close the back door. Quicker than you can imagine it, Joco, one of the smallest monkeys of the tribe, escaped from the barn and was on his way to "Monkey Land." He did not go far however, he went to a neighboring farm where he put up for the night in a hen house. A telephone call to the circus farm notified the show that the monkey had been found and he came and got him. The keepers hastened to the spot where Joco was visiting. When Joco saw them he went to the top of the barn and laughed at them. When the keepers got on top of the barn he went to the corn crib—when the keepers got on the corn crib, Joco was in a tree, and as much as they could for week after week, they could not catch the traitor Joco.

The winter wore on, and Joco went from farm to farm visiting. Complaint after complaint began to come to the circus men that the monkey was eating up all the eggs the hens could lay, and as a consequence there was many a bill to pay for the damage Joco was doing in the neighborhood.

One of the neighboring farmers who had several visits from Joco watched him one evening in a hog lot. There was hit monkey riding on the back of the legs—and the latter didn't seem to mind it at all. This is how Joco managed to keep warm, for many nights it was several degrees below zero, and the keepers of the wild animals at the circus farm were getting on the monkey could live in such weather. But Joco, with his hog stove, kept warm and lived the winter through on the fat of the land. When he was at last captured and brought back to the circus he was a fine specimen. He had great long hair; his face was rough and hardy and he was twice the size he was when he escaped. It certainly made a great man out of Joco, and today he is the best-chest monkey in the menagerie of the Schell Bros. Circus, which will exhibit at Hope on Wednesday, October 3.

Gorman Hints at New Strike Move

Union Leader Reasserts Charge Lieutenants Are Being "Picked Off"

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Francis Gorman, chairman of the textile strike committee, said Tuesday that sentiment for a renewal of the strike was strong in Southern mill centers because of the allegedly widespread discrimination against the strikers in the re-employment of workers. Gorman said he was urging union members to be patient until the new textile labor relations board is appointed and given time to act.

Detroit Clinches Flag in American

Yankees' Defeat by Boston Ends Struggle for Pennant

NEW YORK —(AP)—The Detroit Tigers Monday won the American League pennant for the first time in 23 years without swing a bat or throwing a ball when the New York Yankees were counted out of the race as they closed their home season by dropping a 5 to 0 decision to the Boston Red Sox.

With only five games remaining on their schedule, the Yankees dropped six games back of the Tigers, Mickey Cochran's men can lose all their remaining five contests and still finish with a game to spare, even though the Yankees win all their games. The Tigers were not scheduled to play today.

Johnny Mercera, youthful right-hander from Syracuse, who joined the Sox at the close of the International League actually clinched the pennant for the Tigers. He allowed the Yankees only four widely scattered hits, two by Lou Gehrig. Only one Yankee got as far as third base and that was Gehrig, who singled in the fourth and advanced on Eddie Morgan's error and an infield out.

The Sox found Johnny Murphy easy in the early rounds, making four of their five runs in the first three. The former Fordham ace allowed only seven hits but three errors, two by Red Rolfe and one by Selkirk, figured in the scoring. Rolfe's two mistakes came in the second inning when the Sox counted twice with the help of two bases on balls.

Babe Ruth, making his last appearance of the year at the stadium, and probably his last as a regular, was forced to retire after his first time at bat in the first inning because of a charley horse in his left leg. He had one putout in the outfield and walked at his only time at bat. Myril Hoag ran for him and then took over the Babe's position in right field.

A new church had been put up in the arid land region and the mayor of the town was commissioned to engage a preacher. He finally met with a man he liked very much. "I hope you're not a Baptist," he said. "Why so," asked the minister. "Because," responded the mayor, "we have to haul our water 10 miles."

Car owner: "I locked the car up before we left it, and now, confound it, I can't find the key!"
Wife (helpfully): "Well, never mind dear! It's a wonderful night—we can ride home in the rumble seat!"
"Too bad about Tom and the dog he is engaged to. Neither of them is good enough for the other."
"Where did you get that idea?"
"I've been talking the match over with both families."
